Oden loved by local people for 100 years

Deep fried tofu, potatoes, daikon radish, fish cake, burdock root tempura, boiled egg, konjac...

The "Kantō-ni-style" taste of sweet and strong seasoning which has been loved by the locals for a long time.

Reasons for the "Good Luck Food"

Ishikiri oden does not contain cut-up ingredients. Ishikiri-Tsurugiya Shrine is blessed for healing illnesses, and many people visit the shrine especially before surgery, so the oden is specially made to bring good luck and not remind people of "cutting the body".

Suzuya has been operating a restaurant in this area since the Meiji era, and has maintained the same taste since its establishment. We have been serving Oden to many people every day with the wish that they will be healthy and healed by the blessings of the Ishikiri-Tsurugiya Shrine.
